AND NUMBERING SYSTEM

This book is not copyrighted, it is the outcome of the author's 51 years of practical library work, and whatever good is contained therein is freely given, so that the library may become more useful as a public institution.

First edition, 1901.

Second edition, 1910.

Third, enlarged edition, 1926.

Printed in the United States of America by
J. J. LITTLE AND IVES COMPANY, NEW YORK

INTRODUCTORY

This system is as nearly mnemonic as possible, intending to aid both the public and the library employees.

The classification system is arranged to fall in succession, each sub-class a relative part of the main class; it is divided into three parts—Class (A), sub-class (b), and a division (3).

Any person with an ordinary education and a small knowledge of books and their authors can find books, should the reader fail to supply either class letter or number, or both. Example: If a book on music is wanted the messenger will know that music is a fine art, Class F and a sub-class m (Music), where a guide card shows the numbered division wanted.

This system is more expansive than here represented, as not all the letters of the alphabet are used, leaving room for more classes, also a very few sub-classes or divisions are used up.

Books are classified: First, under subject; Second, by Author's numbered combination; Third, by initial letter or title of book. Example: Fiske, American Revolution; Hu.44059 a; Subject Hu. sub-class, 4: Fiske, 4059; initial letter of book, a; together making one shelf combination.

Biography is under the names of those written of, as Adams, Lincoln, Washington, sub-class, initial letter of the Author's name; Autobiography without sub-letter, see rule.

Use the correct name of an author and not the pseudonym, anonymous books are numbered under combination of the first word of title; Fiction alphabetically arranged under the title of book no letter or numbering used.

For the convenience of the public and to avoid confusion the sub-letters K and N are substituted for L and O, as both these letters where index cards are typewritten appear as extra numbers 1 and 0.

When there are several books with the same initial letter, as Da, Do, or in the case of biography where there are more than one of the same initial as: life of Washington, by Seelye, Sparks, Stoddard, the following scale is used as B,9479,s-2; B,9479,s-6; or B,9479,s-8.

Scale of sub-Numbers.

A to C — 1
D to F — 2
G to H — 3

I to K — 4
L to M — 5
N to P — 6

R to S — 7
T to V — 8
W to Z — 9
